

Universal Ear Notching System

Dr. Joel DeRouchey, Kansas State University

The Universal Ear Notching System is the standard way to permanently identify swine. This is generally completed during the first week after farrowing while the pigs are still small and easy to handle.

The pig's right ear is the litter ear and the pig's left ear is the individual pig number in the litter.

